Contents

of figures	page 1X
of tables	X
ntroduction	1
.1 Introduction	I
.2 Why experimental auctions?	3
.3 What is an experimental auction?	5
.4 Purpose of this book and boundaries of coverage	17
ncentive compatible auctions: theory and evidence	19
2.1 Introduction	19
2.2 Theory of incentive compatible auctions	20
2.3 Evidence from induced value auctions	27
Value theory	34
3.1 Introduction	34
3.2 Valuation under certainty	34
	37
Table DAM BERT STATE AND A DESCRIPTION OF STATE OF STAT
and irreversibility	43
3.5 Summary	- 44
Conducting experimental auctions; some preliminaries	46
.1 Introduction	46
.2 Experimental design	47
	55
	57
5.5 Conclusions	61
Conducting experimental auctions	62
i.1 Introduction	62
.2 Training and practice	62
	65
	69
	76
Learning and affiliation in repeated bidding rounds	80
7.7 Negative values	92
8 Conclusions	94
	Introduction 1.1 Introduction 1.2 Why experimental auctions? 1.3 What is an experimental auction? 1.4 Purpose of this book and boundaries of coverage 1.5 Introduction 1.6 Introduction 1.7 Theory of incentive compatible auctions 1.8 Evidence from induced value auctions 1.9 Value theory 1.1 Introduction 1.2 Valuation under certainty 1.3 Valuation under uncertainty 1.4 Valuation in a dynamic environment with uncertainty, limited information, and irreversibility 1.5 Summary 1.6 Introduction 1.7 Experimental design 1.8 Sample size determination 1.9 Experiment setting and context: field versus laboratory 1.9 Conducting experimental auctions 1.1 Introduction 1.2 Training and practice 1.3 Endowment versus full bidding 1.4 Choosing an auction mechanism 1.5 Multiple good valuation, demand reduction, and field substitutes 1.6 Learning and affiliation in repeated bidding rounds 1.7 Negative values

V111	Contents

6	Data	analysis	95
	6.1	Introduction	95
	6.2	Censored regressions with auction bids	95
	6.3	Quantile regression with auction bids	100
	6.4	그렇게 하하게 잃었다면 하하게 하하게 하하게 없는데 아이가 가장 보고 있다. 하하지만 맛있다면 하셨습니다.	103
	6.5	Other types of data analysis with auction bids	106
	6.6	: : : : : : : : : : : : : : : : : : :	112
7	Valu	ation case studies	113
	7.1	Introduction	113
	7.2	Informing Policy I: beef tenderness grading system	113
	7.3	Informing Policy II: valuing safer food	121
	7.4	Informing Policy III: tolerance for genetically modified food	129
	7.5	Marketing I: forecasting market share of a new product	137
	7.6		141
	7.7	Marketing III: the value of farm financial records	149
	7.8	Controversial goods I: demand for genetically modified food in three countries	154
	7.9	Controversial goods II: irradiation	163
	7.10	Controversial goods III: food from animals treated with growth hormones	169
	7.11	Concluding comments	174
		Appendices	175
8	Auct	ion design: case studies	196
	8.1	Introduction	196
	8.2	Preference learning	196
	8.3	Willingness to pay, willingness to accept, and the auction mechanism	199
	8.4	Second price auction tournaments	209
	8.5	Preferences: fixed or fungible?	217
	8.6	Gift exchange	225
	8.7		229
	8.8	Hybrid auctions and consequential bidding	239
	8.9	Concluding remarks	245
9	Valid	dity of experimental auctions	247
	9.1	Introduction	247
	9.2	Auction bids and economic theory	248
	9.3	Reliability	252
	9.4	Convergent validity	255
	9.5	Anomalies	261
	9.6	Summary	267
10			269
	10.1	Introduction	269
	10.2	Ten questions worthy of future research	270
	10.3	Concluding remarks	278
R^{nt}	Foronc	20	279
	References
Ind	ex		297